

GIDEON JONES is a Vietnam veteran who crashed emotionally in San Jose after his divorce. He relocated to a coastal town and started his life again. He managed to buy a warehouse at an auction, start a business and find a small cottage with the last of his money. He finds a partner and things start to look good for him for the first time since the war. He has a connection with the spirit world one night in his small cottage on his acre of land, and gets a “realization” that he is not just living on Earth but that he is living in the Arena of God. The next day, when he goes to tell his business partner about the vision he finds that something happened to the partner as well. The partner, MO, tells Gideon that one of his neighbors, AARON, has invited them to help a couple who is going through a difficult divorce. They get involved in this attempt to help the couple unravel their conflict only to end up witnessing a horrible series of events. The partners are devastated by this crushingly sad event and demand to find out why Aaron dragged them into it. Aaron tells them that he had a connection to the spirit world four years earlier and has been working with him ever since. He mentions that the Angel he was told that this planet is not called Earth, but the Arena of God. Gideon and Mo realize that they were given the realization to prepare them to work with Aaron. They agree to move forward as a team when Aaron explains that his work is becoming more dangerous as the Darkness wants him out of the Arena. Then Aaron disappears. Gideon and Mo invite Aaron and his room mate CURTISS to dinner and Aaron never shows. They come to realize that Aaron has been kidnapped and is in mortal danger. They also find out that a second person has been kidnapped and seems to be taken with Aaron. Her name is MIMI and that is their first clue to finding the two missing persons. Gideon and Mo and Curtiss go to work with the local police to find their friends and meet the Angel that works with Aaron. His name is SIGNAL and he tells the partners that they have a deadline of one week to find Aaron before his captors kill him. The countdown begins and every effort is made to locate their friends. Gideon reflects back on his time in Vietnam and the effect it has had on him. He realizes what damage the war did to his life as a civilian and that he has never really gotten all the way back to “normal” society. He wants to get closer to his friends and to save the one who is lost. They identify the probable kidnapper as HENRY AUGUSTUS, a known drug dealer, and the former husband of Mimi. They are not aware of Henry’s confused connection between Mimi and Aaron but the darkness knows why they are connected. The forces of the darkness are using the need for revenge Henry feels toward his ex-wife to remove Aaron from the Arena for good. The local drug cartel has given Henry the use of a barge they own in the harbor of the coastal town and that is where he keeps the hostages. The police are unable to connect this barge to the crime syndicate in town. Through a misinterpretation of the clues the police start to close in on the wrong location. Gideon and Mo realize that right down the road from their warehouse is the barge where their friends are being held. While Mo desperately tries to get the police to abandon their location and come to help but the time runs out and Henry and his soldiers start their final preparations to kill the two hostages and flee. It comes down to Gideon having to face Henry and his last four soldiers by himself. The final battle is on and Gideon is pressed into using his wartime skills to engage with them to see who get the two hostages.
